

Foster Parent BBQ a Huge Success

On Friday, May 29th, in Recognition of National Foster Care Month, over 50 foster parents came together for a night of BBQ and inspiration. The location- Famous Dave's BBQ, the topic- How to Better Take Care of Yourself so You Can Take Care of Others. Jack Levine, founder of 4Generations Institute, a communications and public policy consultant discussed the importance of recharging our batteries, making the best use of time, and giving ourselves the gifts we deserve.

For the first time, child care was provided at no cost the parents at the Villas Wesleyan Church in South Ft. Myers. Volunteers from Lutheran Services Florida and Cape Coral High School entertained over 20 children with fun games, movies and snacks.

"This was one of the best times I have ever had with our foster parents. It was truly a pleasure to sit down and have a conversation with these parents. The work they do every day is amazing!" commented Nadereh Salim, Chief Executive Officer of Children's Network.
